Allowable Subject Matter

Based on the Examiner's indication that claims 4, 5, 6, 7, and 9 were not rejected over the prior art of record, Applicant has amended claim 1 to include all of the limitations of claim 4 and has introduced new independent claims 10, 13, 17, and 20 containing the subject matter of original claim 1 and also claims 5, 6, 7, and 9 respectively.

Claims 1-3, 5-7, and 10-23 are considered to be allowable. Concerning claim 1, Enami does not provide even a lightly detailed description of the branched component and, thus, while a branched compound adhering to perhaps some of the claim limitations of component may be readily envisaged, it could hardly be stated that the reference fairly teaches component (B). Isshiki et al., while somewhat more descriptive of the branched polysiloxane component also does not fairly teach component (B).

As for claim 10, Isshiki makes cursory mention that the organohydrogensiloxane component may be branched but absolutely does not fairly disclose a branched organohydrogensiloxane having the specified level of aryl group content.

Claims 13 and 17 are not necessarily inherently satisfied by the references. A polyorganosiloxane composition having the stated index of refraction (claim 13) would ostensibly have to contain a fairly high degree of aryl group substitution- in Applicant's examples there is a phenyl ring in every repeat unit of the alkenyl group functionalized polymers- and it is not clear that the polymer components of the composition disclosed by Isshiki have the minimum aryl group content needed to satisfy this limitation. Indeed, the linear alkenyl group-functionalized polysiloxane has at most 40 mol% aryl group content. Aryl group substitution is not even mandated of both the linear and branched alkenyl-functional polymers of Enami. The patentability of original claim 7 and, hence, claim 17 was evaluated in the last correspondence.

As an aside, the Examiner wishes to emphasize that the Examiner has assigned the meaning "any orientation that is not linear" to the term "branched". It is believed that this assumption is appropriate insofar as Applicant applies this term even to resinous compounds where there is no clear single central chain. For instance, application example 2, refers to a silsesquioxane bearing silicon-bound hydrogen atoms as branched. In general, silsesquioxanes have a ladder shape or a polyhedral shape where a central backbone is not clearly identifiable. Nevertheless, Applicants are entitled to be their own lexicographer and there is nothing especially repugnant in their characterization.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

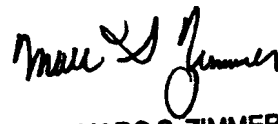

Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Marc S. Zimmer whose telephone number is 571-272-1096. The examiner can normally be reached on Monday-Friday 8:00-4:30.
